Bass-baritone was so prolific at one point that you wouldn't think he'd need to kill two birds with one stone, but that's what he does with Benedictus, an album of duets recorded with tenor and fellow Welshman: it serves both as an album aimed at Britain's large crossover classical audience and as a step in 's pursuit of Welsh identity.. There are just titles, in the manner of a pop album Despite its multiple marketing aims, the album works nicely.. Robat Arwyn, from Ruthin, wrote the music for a song called Benedictus on an album by three Irish Catholic priests backed by the Vatican Choir which went on to be an international hit in 30 countries, selling two million copies.. The aim is to give the audience an insight into Robat's musical journey, that started with the composition of a choral symphony while at college, up to his latest commission, writing a piece of music for cello and piano.. Sometimes this results in a little lurch from track to track, but 's big, warm voice keeps everything together.

Scores Some of Robert Arwyn's compositions are available to buy individually and the list here gives a short description.. His work as a composer, conductor and pianist will be honoured at a special concert at the North Wales International Music Festival at St Asaph Cathedral at 7.. And, who blend naturally as a duet, cover a wide temporal range here: some of the music sounds as though it goes back to the era; some of it was written by followers of; and some is contemporary.. Accompanying musicians include a small string group, an all-female string group called Celticana, and a piano.. 30pm on Saturday, September 23 The concert, that's being sponsored by the award-winning construction company, Jones Bros Civil Engineering UK whose head office is in Ruthin, will feature the renowned tenor Rhys Meirion who will also take on the role of interviewer.. The festival, which starts on Saturday, September 16, and ends on Saturday, September 30, is being supported by the Arts Council of Wales, Tŷ Cerdd and the Colwinston Charitable Trust.. Among the other stars of the festival will be singers from Welsh National Opera with the newly formed Festival Community Chorus, vocal group VOCES8, the Aquarelle Guitar Quartet, baroque instrumentalists Red Priest, violinist Ye-Eun Choi, Ensemble Cymru, the National Youth Brass Band of Wales and Italian pianist Federico Colli.. Has chosen his Welsh material well, and the result is something like the performances Italian singers used to give of Neapolitan songs: the music is sentimental and delivered with full sincerity. 0041d406d9 Vasthu Malayalam Pdf
